The suggested minimum requirements for a Mac to run Age of Empires III Definitive Edition are: Processor: Intel processor, Core i5, i7 or i9 Memory: 16 GB or more Storage: SSD drive Graphics: AMD graphics card These are my first impressions of Age of Empires III Definitive Edition after a few days.. I have written several times in the Parallels blog about my most favorite game franchise of all time: Age of Empires (Here, here, and here).. The last few years have seen a real resurgence in Age of Empires (“There likely has never been a more vibrant community around this 21-year-old game,” said Jonathan Bolding).

I used Age of Empires III Definitive Edition on two different Macs: a MacBook Pro and an iMac, both using the same Windows 10 VM.. The machine specs and the VM settings are shown in Figure 2 As expected for any game with “Definitive Edition” in its name, the graphics have been dramatically improved.. Undoubtedly, this is because Parallels Desktop allocates video RAM for the VM out of Mac system memory and it will provide the video RAM that an app needs (Figure 6), but the game had no way of knowing this.. I used Age of Empires III Definitive Edition on two different Macs: a MacBook Pro and an iMac, both using the same Windows 10 VM.. Since Age of Empires is a Windows game, when I want to play it, I use a Windows virtual machine (VM) in Parallels Desktop – and that is why I write about Age of Empires here.. Because my GPU was rated “Ultra High”, for the Age of Empires III Definitive Edition screenshots (Figure 3 and 4) and the game play video (Video 1), I set all the graphics options to their maximum settings.. The two new home cities for these new cultures are shown in Figure 1 We are proud to collaborate with Microsoft and officially support AoE III DE as a platform for playing this game on the Mac.. Please note the CPU score of “Very High” and the GPU score of “Ultra High”.. I look forward to many more days of playing both Age of Empires III Definitive Edition and Age of Empires II Definitive Edition..
